CROWDS GATHER FOR DEDICATION OF ASPERS HALL

Demonstration of New Pumper Opens 2-day Event; Talks This Evening.

FIREMEN WILL MARCH SATURDAY

Crowds were gathering at Aspers this afternoon for the opening feature of the two-day program in connection with the dedication of the new combination fire engine house and community hall and a new piece of motorized fire-fighting apparatus.

The opening feature of the two-day program was the demonstration to be given by the new $3,335 Luerne pumper at 4:30 o'clock this afternoon.

After the demonstration, the newly-organized auxiliary of the Aspers fire company, which is also observing the tenth anniversary of its founding, will serve a roast chicken supper.

At 6:30 o'clock this evening, a program of addresses has been planned. C. H. Gulden, president of the company, will preside.

Parade on Saturday
The speaker for the occasion will be John L. McClellan, field representative of the state emergency relief board, work division, and James B. Aumen, of Gettysburg. Mr. McClellan will describe the part played by the GWA in the construction of the two-story brick building which houses the fire engine house and the community hall. The Bigville band will furnish music.

On Saturday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock, a firemen's parade will be held. About 15 of the 20 fire companies in Adams county will be represented with men and equipment in the procession.

After the parade, an address will be given by State Senator Leon C. Prince, of Carlisle, and the new fire engine house and community hall will be formally dedicated. Chief Aumen, of the Gettysburg fire company, is again scheduled to speak on Saturday.

After the speaking program, the auxiliary will again serve a supper.

The wedding took place at Stroudsburg. Mr. Conti has been a member of the front office staff of the Necho-Alton hotel at Pottsville during the last six years. Prior to going there he was a clerk at the Hoffman hotel in Gettysburg.

Weather Favors Stratosphere Flight

Rapid City, July 13 (AP)—The first hope for an early start of the Stevens-Kepler stratosphere journey appeared today as the weather map indicated a high pressure area was moving toward South Dakota's Black Hills.

Still highly uncertain, the approach of this desired condition was the first favorable sign since preparations for the flight were completed four days ago.

RUNAWAY RETURNED HOME

Thomas Jefferson Tate, 16, of Washington, D. C., who ran away from his home, Thursday, was picked up in Gettysburg, Thursday evening, and turned over to the state police, who notified the boy's parents. Probe Campus Beauty's Death

The death of Marian Mills (above), 20-year-old coed at the University of Oklahoma, is being investigated by officials. Mrs. Hazel Brown, fraternity house cook in whose home the girl was found dead, said Miss Mills took a "quack" remedy to prevent motherhood. The county attorney questioned that explanation. NEW ATTORNEY MAY BE NAMED

Adams County Poor Directors Contemplate Change in Board's Attorneyship.

Robert E. Wible, Esq., attorney for the Adams county directors of the poor and out-door relief officer, will be relieved of his joint position at the August meeting of the directors of the poor, it was reported today.

He is expected to be succeeded by Edgar K. Markley, Esq., one of the younger members of the Adams county bar.

This proposed change in the attorneyship on the poor board was learned from an authoritative source today. Official announcement of the change will be made at the next monthly meeting of the directors on Tuesday, August 7, it was learned.

Mr. Wible, who served two terms as attorney for the directors of the poor and out-door relief officer, was re-appointed to the position when the present board re-organized in January.

Both Mr. Wible and Mr. Markley are republicans. Mr. Markley is president and one of the active members of the Young Republicans' club, of Gettysburg.

The position as attorney for the poor board pays a salary of $300. The position of out-door relief officer carries with it a salary of $175 a year.

Members of the poor board would not discuss the proposed change today, preferring to wait, they said, until the regular August meeting. They did not deny, however, that the change was contemplated.

Next Friday the Thirteenth Is Fourteen Months Away

BELIEVERS in the ill of Friday the thirteenth may draw a long breath after today, for their days will be clear the remainder of 1934 and for two-thirds of 1935. To go 14 months without fears of calamity by the calendar is indeed a treat, and well it might be. It hasn't happened for many years.

Years without a Friday the thirteenth are much scarcer than leap years, and the rule is for at least two such days to show up on every calendar. Adherence to such a rule is shown by 1933, 1934 and 1935, but the odd part is the break that comes in between. Persons who pay no attention to jinx days won't notice the difference. But those who do are going to enjoy every month until September of next year.

The other such day this year was in April, showing that 1934 packed them in early. Next year claims only December after September, taking the nether end. Last year claimed January and October.

FRISCO'S TRADE PARALYSIS HITS CRITICAL STAGE

Teamsters' Strike Halts Movement of Supplies; Butchers Quit Work.

UNIONS IGNORE BOARD'S PLEA

San Francisco, July 13 (AP).—Strike paralysis crept farther along the channels of Pacific coast commerce Thursday and San Francisco began to take on the aspects of a beleaguered city in face of a threatened general walkout.

The crucial situation stretched far beyond the reach of President Roosevelt's labor disputes board as one union after another made known its intention to strike or to follow recommendations soon to be made by a strategy committee on the question of a general walkout.

The federal board worked in a tense atmosphere, hoping to persuade the striking maritime unions to submit to arbitration the issues involved in the tangled situation.

Halt Freight Motor Vehicles
Ignoring the plea of the president's board for delay, the teamsters' unions of San Francisco and Alameda county walked out, 3,700 strong, stopping the movement of freight motor vehicles. Wholesale butcher workers dropped their knives, saws and cleavers, cutting off fresh meat supplies for the 1,000,000 residents of the bay cities.

3 HURT AS CAR HITS CULVERT

The injured, Mrs. Arthur Sheriff, 37; Miss Ethel Jacobs, 10, and Mrs. George Mummert, 35, all of Carlisle, were treated for lacerations on the head by Dr. Robert Stone, of York Springs.

The injured were riding in a sedan driven by Charles S. Jacobs, of Carlisle. Jacobs was traveling southeast on the Carlisle road in the direction of York Springs. At the same time George W. Harbolt, York Springs R. 1, was also traveling southeast and was about to make a turn into his garage.

Jacobs told Corporal R. M. Stroh, of the local sub-station of the state motor patrol, who investigated, that Harbolt's sedan crossed the center of the highway, forcing his machine off the highway.

Jacobs' sedan, after running off the highway, crashed into a concrete culvert, and was practically demolished. Damage to the car was estimated by Corporal Stroh at $200.

Some Merchants Not As Well Known Here As They Surmise

Gettysburg merchants and business people, particularly those who have been in business over a period of years, have the impression that "everybody knows us, where we are in business and what we sell."

But are they correct? Scores of replies to an "Identification Contest" of Gettysburg merchants, in which the photographs of 21 business people were published on a full-page display last Saturday in The Gettysburg Times offering prizes for those submitting the correct and nearest answers, show that not one had the pictures of all the merchants properly placed in the advertisements and their names correct. In many of the answers, a dozen or more were displaced or the wrong names given.

Which proves that hundreds of residents will know more about the merchants participating in this unique advertising contest when their names and photographs are properly placed in the full-page display in The Gettysburg Times Saturday.

Cyclist Injured in Maryland Accident

In a motorcycle accident at Black's Corner, Maryland, not far from Kingsdale, Thursday evening, C. Woodrow Crouse, 19, of near Littlestown, suffered a fractured skull and multiple lacerations of the head and body.

Just how the accident occurred was not learned. Apparently, however, Crouse lost control of his 'cycle, and the machine left the highway and crashed into a tree.

He was taken to the office of Dr. Donald Coover, Littlestown, and the physician immediately ordered him removed to the Warner hospital. At the hospital today, Crouse's condition was said to be fair.

Roosevelt Starts 12 Days' Pacific Cruise to Hawaii

Stops Today at Cocos Island, 600 Miles Out, for Fishing; Says at Press Conference he Expects Johnson to Continue As NRA Head.

Aboard the Cruiser New Orleans En Route to Hawaii with President Roosevelt, July 13 (AP).—President Roosevelt cruised out into the Pacific ocean late Thursday, and headed for the distant Hawaiian Islands. The president boarded the cruiser

Thursday afternoon after a motor trip with President Arias of Panama to the ruins of old Panama City on a hill overlooking the ocean.

The president expressed surprise at the uncovering of the old brick and stone fortresses and homes since his visit to Panama twenty-two years ago.

Center of Cheering Crowds
With the sun sinking into the Pacific waters, he stood with his sons, Franklin and John, on the forestructure of the cruiser to witness the passing of the cruiser out of the Panama canal to sea.

Again Thursday during drives through Balboa and Panama city the president was greeted at all places by waving and applauding citizens whose reception paralleled that of the crowds that have come out to see him at the various places he had stopped on his vacation tour.

The president said he had received only a minimum of official business since leaving Washington. He expects Johnson to Stay on Job

He said he expected Gen. Hugh Johnson to continue the administration of the NRA and that as far as the future administration is concerned he had not determined what would be done.

Cocos island was reached by the Houston today. This spot, about 600 miles out, lured the president as a fishing ground.

In some unexplained manner, the aged man fell from his position, and the wagon, with its heavy load of grain, passed over both legs and his right arm. The injured arm is badly lacerated between the hand and the elbow.

The injured man was admitted as a patient to the Warner hospital.

Freed After His 49th Jail Term

After spending eight months in jail on a series of five-day sentences, John Marsh, Gardeners R. 3 farmer, was freed Thursday afternoon.

Marsh was released from the Cumberland county prison in Carlisle where authorities relented after Marsh spent eight months in prison rather than yield in his position refusing to permit the vaccination of his children.

He had been arrested November 23, 1933, on charges of violating the compulsory school attendance act. Because he would not allow the vaccination of the children, they were unable to attend the Pike school, and the charges were preferred by members of the South Middleton township school board of Cumberland county.

Convicted Slayer Dies in Gas Chamber

State Prison, Carson City, Nev., July 13 (AP).—Joseph Beheiter, 36, a Syrian, formerly of St. Louis, was executed today in the prison lethal gas chamber.

The convicted slayer of Maxine Armstrong Los Vegas dance hall girl, whistled a tune as he walked into the small gas chamber from his cell.

"Don't strap me to the chair too tightly," he said to prison officials. "It might keep the gas from my lungs."

Robert Shumaker, of Johnstown, is spending a month with Mr. and Mrs. William Pensyl, Hanover street.

SHEELY BALKS MOVE TO LOWER INTEREST RATE

Counsel for Adams Bankers Leads Successful Attack on City Plan.

BANKS IN THIRD DISTRICT TO VOTE

Philadelphia, July 13 (AP).—Approximately 500 bankers of the Third Federal Reserve district discussed lowering the interest rate on savings from three to two and one-half per cent, Thursday decided to hold a referendum among the 950 banks in the district, which comprises eastern and central Pennsylvania, southern New Jersey and Delaware.

W. Clarence Sheely, Esq., Gettysburg, counsel for the Adams County Bankers' association, led a group of Pennsylvania bankers who favored keeping the present rate. They prevented an immediate vote on a resolution which would have called upon the Federal Deposit Insurance corporation and the Federal Reserve board to reduce the rate.

John J. Driscoll, certified public accountant, of Philadelphia, recommended the lower interest rate, declaring $10 per $1000 of savings deposits is the lowest sound profit that should be earned.

Loss Offset by Earnings
Loss of deposits due to interest cuts would be more than offset, Driscoll said, through the increased earnings of the bank.

John Clark, of Lock Haven, moved adoption of the resolution calling for the rate reduction, seconded by Dorrance Reynolds, of Wilkes-Barre. As W. Walter Wilson, of Milton, chairman of the meeting, put the question, Sheely arose and protested no opportunity was given for discussion.

"I wish to point out," Sheely said, "that more than 80 per cent of the deposits in our territory are time deposits, on which interest is paid. Also in our territory, we are compelled to finance farmers."

"We feel that if the interest rates are lowered we will lose more than 25 per cent of our deposits. I'll even venture to say it will be more."

In Adams county we feel we can safely afford to pay three per cent interest on time deposits," J. W. Staman, of Lancaster county, also protested, and Charles Steele, of Snyder county, said the three per cent rate encourages savings.

Vote for Referendum
The meeting then passed a resolution to take a vote among the banks in the district.

Referenda will be taken at the same time on other resolutions, which would petition the Federal Reserve board to fix regulations preventing commercial depositors from taking advantage of savings accounts, reduce postal savings interest rates to eliminate the system as competition to national and state banks; and propose the appointment of a committee on banking regulations between federal and state governmental agencies and banking institutions of the district.

Elwyn Evans, of Wilmington, Delaware, said the rules laid down by the Federal Reserve board in interpreting that part of the banking act which amended the Federal Reserve act had led to "confusion and amounted almost to anarchy."

Carl S. Crispin, of Swedesboro, New Jersey, attacked the postal savings system as a rival to banks and recommended it be abolished or that its scope be limited to communities with inadequate banking facilities.

The delegation from the Adams county bankers' association present at the Philadelphia meeting, in addition to Mr. Sheely, included Lloyd W. Kuhn, Benderville, president of the association, and Edmund W. Thomas and I. L. Taylor, of Gettysburg.

Kay Don on Trial In Death of His Aide

Douglas, Isle of Man, July 13 (AP)—With the prosecution expressing hope that an "explanation" warranting acquittal can be found, Kaye Don, British motor and speedboat racer, was placed on trial Thursday on a charge of manslaughter growing out of an automobile accident.

The charge is based on the death of Francis Taylor, Don's 27-year-old mechanic, in a crash on a highway the night of May 28.

"If we find there is an explanation of this accident we will all be very happy," said Attorney General R. B. Moore in outlining the case to the jury.

"But if you are forced to the conclusion that this happened because Kaye Don chose to race 60 miles an hour on the public highway in falling light and caused this man's death, then it be your unpleasant duty to find him guilty."

NRA Order Fixes Price of Cigarettes

Washington, July 13 (AP)—NRA Thursday fixed the price of popular-brand cigarettes at a minimum of 13 cents a package of twenty or two packages for a quarter.

Cartons will cost the smoker not less than $1.20. The twenty-four-cent variety of cigarettes will continue to sell for ten cents. The price limitation begins July 16 and was set for a 90-day period in two orders by Hugh B. Johnson, declaring "an emergency has arisen tending to defeat the purposes" of the recovery law.

The emergency named was the extensive use of cigarettes as "loss leaders" by large retailers and chain store distributors not primarily engaged in the retail tobacco trade. NRA said such stores were using cigarettes as a "bait" for other business, "a practice which has practically eliminated small enterprise from tobacco distribution."

HITLER READY WITH DEFENSE

German Chancellor to Explain Recent Nazi Deaths to World Over Radio.

Berlin, July 13 (AP).—Chancellor Hitler drew up a defense today of his purge-by-death of the Nazi ranks—a defense he presents to the world tonight in one of his greatest oratorical challenges.

While the "iron chancellor" sat down in seclusion to write his speech, his cohorts built up a superstage for him before the all-Nazi reichstag.

"We fight and pray for Hitler," was emblazoned on huge banners. Not since his power of oratory elevated him to the chancellor some 18 months ago and brought millions under the swastika have Hitler and Nazism faced such a task.

A two-fold task confronted Hitler—to convert an untold number of sceptics at home and to placate a world abroad—embittered by Nazi Germany's financial and political attitude.

Queen Mary at Garden Party Chats With President's Mother

Mrs. James Roosevelt Attends Affair at Holyrood Castle, Edinburgh; Mrs. Andrew Carnegie and Sir Harry Lauder, in Kilts, Also Present.

Edinburgh, July 13 (AP).—Queen Mary and Mrs. James Roosevelt, a gown of pale orchid mauve lace with a silk top of the same shade and orchids of the same color pinned to her waist. She had a necklace of diamonds.

The king was clad in gray top hat, a light gray frock coat and trousers and white gloves. A white carnation adorned his lapel.

A number of the women guests wore dresses with "sunbathing" backs and without sleeves, but if Queen Mary was displeased she did not give any sign of it.

Toward the end of the afternoon some of the men and women guests lighted cigarettes, a thing which is never permitted at Buckingham palace garden parties.

Mrs. Roosevelt, dressed in a black and white patterned silk gown, mingled with the ladies of the court, talking to the duchess of Atholl, the duchess of Richmond and many other prominent society and court figures.

After the reception the president's mother spent several hours in Edinburgh and then started for London by train.

Among those attending the garden party were Mrs. Andrew Carnegie and Sir Harry Lauder, who wore kilts and was barelegged like many others.

The king, taking note of the costumes, remarked to Sir Ian Colquhoun as he presented several guests: "You should have come in kilts and barelegged instead of morning dress."

Boy Starts $30,000 Blaze With Matches

Lancaster, July 13 (AP)—Fire started by a small boy playing with matches, destroyed the mill and plant of W. Ralph Sensenich, coal and feed dealer, and damaged seven dwellings late Thursday.

Two firemen, Captain John Rhoades and Joe Wargo, were injured. Rhoades was removed to a hospital. Damage was estimated by firemen at $30,000.

A newspaper man saw a boy running from the building while the blaze was at its height. "Have you a match?" he asked. The boy handed him the match. "Are these the matches you started the blaze with?" asked the newsman.

"Yes," the boy replied. The lad was turned over to police, who said he was nine years old and that he accidentally set the place ablaze while playing in a feed house.

ANNUAL BOYER REUNION

The annual reunion of the Association of American Boyers, incorporated, will be held at East Greenville, Pa., about 12 miles south of Allentown, on route 29, on Sunday, July 22, rain or shine. A splendid program of entertainment and speaking will be given. Entables may be bought by those who do not bring basket lunches. All Boyers and their relatives are most cordially invited.

Figures of the Alaska geological survey indicate that glaciers of the territory when at their maximum spread covered approximately 255,000 square miles.

PROTESTS TALK OF NRA CHIEF

Dr. Adolph Lightner, of German Embassy, Gives Statements to Hull.

Washington, July 13 (AP).—Replying to an official German protest against the anti-Hitler utterance at Waterloo of General Johnson, the state department said it was to be regretted the position occupied by Johnson made it possible for remarks by him as an individual to be "misconstrued as official."

The department made this statement in explaining a visit to Secretary Hull's office today by Dr. Adolph Lightner, charge d'affaires of the German embassy, to protest Johnson's speech.

In his Waterloo speech yesterday, the NRA chief said conditions in Germany made him "very actively sick."

"The idea that adult responsible men can be taken from their homes—stood against a wall—backs to rifles—and shot to death—is beyond expression," he said.

Secretary Hull declined to say whether the state department considered the statements made to Lightner by Hull as closing the episode or whether any other action by the German embassy would be taken.

Milk Producers Hit Price Cutting

Harrisburg, July 13.—Charges that a few milk dealers in the Harrisburg area are cutting prices without any action on the part of the state milk control board were made at a meeting of the Capital City Milk Producers' association held Thursday night in the courthouse at Carlisle.

It was estimated by the farmers at the meeting that the difference between the price paid by these dealers and the agreement price amounted to $6000 during April and May or fifty cents on each 100 pounds of milk sold.

STOCK REPORT

New York, July 13 (AP).—Prices generally displayed irregular trends on the stock exchange today. Shares of Santa Fe, Southern railway, Southern Pacific, New York central and Chesapeake and Ohio yielded major fractions to more than a point. Western Union and Case were down a point or so. United States Smelting, American Smelting and du Pont were steady to firm. A moderately lower drift was shown by United States Steel, American telephone, General Motors, Chrysler, Sears Roebuck, Loews, National Distillers and Allie Chemical.

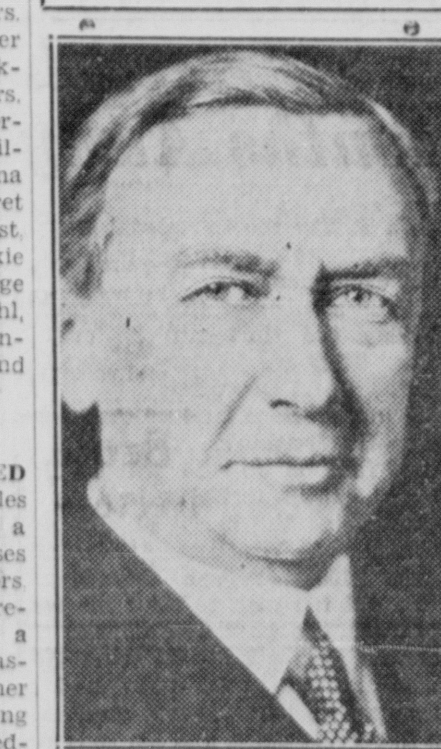

Frisco's Trade

(Continued from Page One) for "any emergencies" and police were on the alert to prevent violence in the industrial area outside the district patrolled by heavily armed militiamen.

Several Trucks Overturned Several trucks found operating after the teamsters walked out Thursday morning were stopped or overturned. Housewives, expecting a siege, began to lay in supplies. Some residents were reported hoarding staples and gasoline in the face of the fire department warnings against the latter. The teamsters' strike seemingly stopped the movement of all heavy trucks in and out of the city, but the strikers indicated they would not interfere with retail delivery vehicles and the bread, milk and laundry carriers would be permitted to operate.

The crux of the strike situation remained in the question of arbitration between employers, on one hand, and striking longshoremen and marine unions, on the other.

SPITE MARRIAGE

by Katharine Haviland Taylor

SYNOPSIS: Marsha Moore marries Bob Powers only because she believes Geoffrey Tarleton has married another girl. But after the first week of her honeymoon at Easthampton, on Long Island, Marsha finds she is perfectly willing to spend the rest of her life making Bob happy. What had seemed in prospect dreadfully dreary, proves an idyl of love.

Chapter 17

MARSHA'S CALL

The third week of the honeymoon was changed in pattern by a necessary trip to town. Bob had run in before to see his mother, but his visits had been short, and he had broken all speed laws in transit in order to "get there—and back."

Now Bob had to see one of the heads of the company about "another bridge," his mother's birthday must be celebrated by them together and Marsha wanted to go to talk to Doctor James—a want she did not confide to Bob.

"Hang it," he said on the night before their early morning start. "I hate leaving here. It been so perfect. I have an odd idea that it won't be here when we get back. I wouldn't be surprised to come back and find, where this house stood, an empty space, and you a dream. But I couldn't survive it! Couldn't! And, my dear, please, remember that!"

She glanced around the room where she, who had not thought herself to be domestic, had begun it . . . planning meals, arranging flowers, ordering things.

At the start she had said and timidly, "I think that little table would be prettier by the window" and Bob answered with an easy-going, casual, "And why not?" And they had changed it.

It was strange how it had made her feel; she had suddenly known it was her house, too, and that Bob saw it, so, wanted it so. She had said, "I never could change anything at Aunt Gertrude's and of course I had no right to, but this is interesting; I do like it—the realization that I can move a chair!"

"We'll tear down the place, if you want to," he promised. It made him "fighting mad" to think of Miss Gertrude's "ditting on any little thing Marsha wanted to do," who was still so wholly the child when enthusiastic, and charmingly, appealingly so.

She had not understood his rise of tenderness that had seemed to grow from their moving the little table. She had only begun to know that happiness hurts those unused to it.

She did not sleep easily nor long at any one time, that night before their start for the two-days' visit to town; Bob's pretended fear about the house and its fading, and her slipping away, had troubled her. Something could happen any time she reasoned, to so change the house for them that the ground might as well be barren.

She would tell Doctor James all about it; of how she had come to marry Bob Powers, and of what had happened to her, married to him. And of how ineptly and weakly dissolute she had been, before Bob. And she would ask Doctor James whether she could make up for cheating Bob by the utmost of sincerity. She gave him nothing but that now; she could give him nothing less.

A strip of cold winter moonlight lay across a braided rug; sitting up—she was so restless—she saw it and in that gray, half-light, that Bob slept, she thought soundly.

An impulse that had never before swept her, made her slip from the bed and to her knees; and here, head buried in her arms, she asked of a something or some one whom circumstance had made remote for her, the boon of being always with Bob.

When she lifted her head she saw Bob raised by an elbow. "I hope you don't mind, dear-est?" he whispered.

"No—" she murmured. He took her hands in his to kiss them lingeringly.

"I've always believed in trying anything once!" she explained. She, somehow, had to get back to "a sort of ease," but it was difficult to do so with Bob, more serious than Doctor James in his chancel and equally, seemingly even more hushed and devout.

"Some day," he asked, "will you tell me what you asked?"

"I hope I shall be able to, some day," she answered. She shivered then. He laid a hand on her bare shoulder to find it chill, but it was not the winter night's cold that had made her tremble, but the realization that she might not ever have a chance to tell him that she had asked to stay with him always!

He was scolding her a little, in his dear, gentle, but rather amusingly firm way, about "running risks."

He left bed to get a water bottle for her; a very hot one with a shaggy towel wrapped around it. She lay laughing at him, but tears were on her lashes.

"There!" he said triumphantly as he tucked it against her. And, sitting up he smoked the cigaret that now he always sought with waking.

"Did I crash in horribly by waking?" he asked abruptly.

"No," she answered.

"One of my best waking nightmares is made by thinking of doing something you won't like," he confided.

"I can have that sort of day dream, or nightmare, myself!" she answered him.

"You!" He laughed after the "You!"

"Don't you think I could do anything you disliked?" she questioned. If he would say, "Yes and I'll forgive you! I love you enough to forgive anything!" But he did not; he said, and slowly, "Possibly and the world would end, too, I suppose; and it would for me, dearest one, if things weren't right between us." And then he had to kiss her hands!

Marsha saw her aunt the next day in town; Miss Gertrude was even more acid than usual. She had not expected Marsha to make this sort of marriage.

Her friends all said, "How delighted you must be!" Some of the more astute of them sometimes looked a trifle doubtfully and problemingly at her; as if she had manufactured the tales about Marsha! And she had done "everything—everything" she could to "bring the child to a realization of her depravity!"

"You say you are enjoying Easthampton," boomed out Miss Gertrude. "It is, I have heard many folk say apropos your—sojourn, an odd place for a—a—"

"Honey-moon," Marsha supplied boldly. "We like it," she went on, and in her new, gentle, way, "and it's near mother. I don't want to shorten her time with Bob. We're coming in to stay with her soon. You see I don't want her cheated."

"The new role is very pleasing Marsha," said Miss Gertrude. "I can only say that I trust it may endure!"

Marsha departed a little bruised and a little downcast, but faintly amused. Her aunt so consistently expected the worst; anything less than the worst actually disappointed her. Perhaps, Marsha decided, she had not had quite a fair chance.

Yes, the maid answered as she stepped into the hall of Saint Timothy's Rectory. Doctor James was in and expecting Mrs. Powers. And he asked that Mrs. Powers come up to his study; the door to it was the one at the head of the stair.

The maid sought rear-rectory quarters haunted by Mrs. Powers, a beautiful young lady who looked "that frightened" and whose lips trembled, but who did not, forget to smile and to thank one who served, even though humbly.

Doctor James rose as Marsha tapped on his door. "Come in," he boomed. He marked his mystery story with a Lenten-purple book-marker that had been made for him by one of the Infant School.

"Before you begin on it," he suggested, with a pat of her hands, "suppose you smoke a cigaret. They soothe."

She laughed. He waved her to a chair. She settled and he tried a cigaret lighter that would not light and then, muttering a little, he held a flaring match to the cigaret which trembled with her hand.

"Not so bad as that, child!" he said. "When you get to my age you realize that nothing is as bad as you thought and that everything is better than you ever dreamed, young, it could be. I am not, I hope, of the Pollyanna school, but if one's digestion is good, life does grow easier and more alluring. Now, what's the matter, dear child?"

He settled on the edge of a deep chair that faced hers.

"Everything—" she answered. She told her story.

Man About Manhattan

By George Tucker

By GEORGE TUCKER
New York.—Bobbing for cherries in a bowl of punch as kids do for apples in a tub at Halloween, a group of roistering engineers were celebrating the conclusion of a convention by turning on the steam for a little fun. Their hilarity extended well into the dawn. They had fore-sworn hotels and taken to an elegant apartment on Riverside drive so they could do a little roof-lifting without fear of remonstrance.

As the scene waxed merrier, somebody suggested they turn on the short wave and listen to police calls. This seemed an excellent thought, and so they did. But, as is often the case in this cock-eyed town, they got more than they bargained for. Smack out of the ether and into their befuddled consciousness came this official denouncement:

"Go to No. —, Riverside drive, and quiet that gang of maniacs before they shake down the house and throw it into the river."

ROCKEFELLER'S KIN TO WED

The engagement of Miss Geraldine Rockefeller McAlpin, grand niece of John D. Rockefeller, to Dr. Jerome Pierce Webster, of New York and Holderness, N. H., a physician on the staff of the hospital where Miss McAlpin is head of a department, was announced at New York by the mother of the bride-to-be. Miss McAlpin's grandfather was a brother of John D. Rockefeller. (Associated Press Photos) you consider the fact that cops are human.

Traffic was a bedlam. Buses, street cars, taxis, cars of all descriptions were swirling along at a fearful rate. If there had been any shade and you stood in it the heat would have registered a hundred. But there wasn't any shade, and so the traffic policeman was simmering in his own juice. He was thoroughly parboiled when the pretty miss with the red hat came out of the hotel.

Somehow a gust of wind sent her hat out into the street. You never saw such nimble drivers. With the dexterity of ballet dancers the first avalanche of traffic missed it. The girl had one of those cupid bows and a pair of gray wistful eyes. She didn't say anything but the mute appeal in her eyes said more than forty columnists could scribble in a week.

This galvanized our hero into action and he blew a furious blast on his whistle. Up went both arms, and traffic ground to a screaming halt. Then, with the tenderness of a man saving a child, he picked up the hat, blew the dust from the brim, stepped to the curb, and presented it to her. The look she gave him was one of those "How could you be so noble" ones, and so even after she had departed he stood looking after her in a state of radiant bliss.

It came to him suddenly that horns were honking and pedestrians were laughing. Crimson to his ears, he tried to simulate a gruff ferocity that somehow didn't convince. Then he grinned and released the traffic with a wave of his hand. He was still grinning when the light changed.

If You Must . . .

Even bandmasters, it seems, preserve their senses of humor. A young fellow with a cute face and no voice rushed in on Vic Young and screamed she would kill herself unless she was engaged to sing.

A bit taken aback, Vic said sure he would listen. Instantly the girl burst into song. She trilled and thrilled and leaped from torch song to tunes of mother love. Vic said later he was astonished that any-

Utah Girl Slain After Gay Party

San Francisco, July 13 (AP).—Parties, drinks and girls figured prominently in testimony Wednesday at the trial of Millard Hickman for the murder of Louise Jeppesen, pretty Utah girl who was attacked and strangled to death in Golden Gate park May 13.

"Tommy" Dee, president of an engineering company, told of "partying" with Hickman after his separation from his wife.

He said he introduced Miss Jeppesen to the 45-year-old marine engineer, in her search for a job at sea. That was on May 8, only a few days before the party at Hickman's apartment, which preceded finding of the girl's body in a tunnel at the park.

"She wanted to get a position on one of the boats," said Dee. "I introduced her to her search for a job at sea. That was on May 8, only a few days before the party at Hickman's apartment, which preceded finding of the girl's body in a tunnel at the park."

Some time later, Dee testified, he was invited to a dinner at Hickman's apartment. When he arrived there with a friend, Miss Blanche McKay, who will be a witness for the defense, Dee said he found Hickman and Miss Jeppesen were the only persons there. Miss Jeppesen was in the kitchen preparing

He didn't say this to the girl, however. All he did was take a revolver out of his desk and hand it to her.

For I would that ye know what great conflict I have for you, and for them at Laodicea, and for as many as have not seen my face in the flesh;

That their hearts might be comforted, being knit together in love, and unto all riches of the full assurance of understanding, to the acknowledgment of the mystery of God, and of the Father, and of Christ;

In whom are hid all the treasures of wisdom and knowledge.
And this I say, lest any man should beguile you with enticing words.

For though I be absent in the flesh, yet am I with you in the spirit, joying and beholding your order, and steadfastness of your faith in Christ.

As ye have therefore received Christ Jesus the Lord, so walk ye in him:

Rooted and built up in him, and established in the faith, as ye have been taught, abounding therein with thanksgiving.

Just Folks
by
EDGAR A. GUEST

YESTERDAY!
Oh, dear old yesterday, gone by!
The fisherman's delight;
The day I think of with a sigh
When bass were known to bite.
For never do I put to sea
On river, lake or bay,
But what somebody says to me:
"They caught 'em yesterday!"

Whenever after fish I go
The time is never right.
Though 'round and 'round the lake
I row
The bass refuse to bite.
The slip that lies 'twixt cup and lip
Pursues my luckless way,
For when I take a fishing trip
It always is today!

Oh, happy yesterday gone by!
I would that I might know
The luck with bait and worm and fly
They tell me you bestow,
And yet should I remain alive
A thousand years away,
I don't see how I can contrive
To catch 'em yesterday.

Today's Talk

By George Matthew Adams

I SAW!

IF WE are alert and desirous of learning, every day can be a lesson in gaining knowledge. The past week I visited Washington, D. C. I saw the beautiful Lincoln Memorial—one of the most inspiring things in the entire world. No one should visit Washington without seeing it. It commemorates the life and influence of one of the greatest of this earth—a poor boy who rose to great heights and remained human and kind and grew greater with the years.

I saw the home where Lee lived, just across the lovely Potomac River and in view of the Lincoln Memorial. I stood and looked at that dignified home and thought of the time when Lee paced the floor trying to decide what he should do—to cast his lot with the side that educated him and nurtured his growth, or to side with those who felt that they had a principle to defend. Today Robert E. Lee is beloved by both sides for his sterling character, his gentleness and his magnificent truthfulness and worth.
He was a great man, worthy of all honor.

In Baltimore, Maryland, I saw the simple stone that marked the grave of Edgar Allan Poe. I passed through York, Pennsylvania, where the Capitol of the United States was located for about a year. The drive from Baltimore to York and then on to Harrisburg and south to Gettysburg is like passing through a great park—an inspiring country. In fact the state of Pennsylvania is a nest of history that is as fascinating to foreigners as to native born Americans.

I was impressed with the fine highways and the wonderful way in which the roads are marked. You take a map with you and you know where you are at any stage of your journey. Touring becomes a joy in the great state of Pennsylvania.

I saw people at work in the fields and magnificent farms for as far as the eye could see in all directions. I wished the people of the city could see what I saw and could love the country as I do. I am in sympathy with the idea of living off of the land—there is so much of it—and laborers all too few!

I saw Valley Forge where Washington and his little army of only 11,000 spent a terrible winter. The present so-called depression, that all of us have felt for the past few years, has been nothing to what those brave heroes went through.

We are living in a wonderful era and in a wonderful world. It is a good world, no matter how you figure it out. Happiness and contentment have to be planted in one's heart—and they have to take root there.

PATTERN 9069

It's a divine little thing down to that perky little lace frill at the edge of the scallops. That, of course, you just buy in the shops ready frilled if you wish. The little cape ruffles, and all the other fetching features such as the round yoke, the clever little bit which has been taken out of the very tip of the point at the front of the pan-cled skirt, and the belt that fastens in the back, are chic as can be. It is an adorable, young little frock and a flower beret is exactly right to wear with it, unless, of course, you prefer the big straws.

Pattern 9069 may be ordered only in sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 22, 24, 26, 28 and 30. Size 16 requires 3½ yards 39 inch fabric.

Send fifteen cents in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for each Marian Martin pattern. Be sure to write plainly your name, address, the style number and size of each pattern.

A beautiful, complete collection of Summer Clothes is shown in the new summer edition of the Marian

German Dye Trust
Pays Lee $25,000

New York, July 13 (AP).—Evidence that Ivy Lee, prominent public relations counsel, is receiving $25,000 a year from the German dye trust for services which include advice on German rearmament was presented Wednesday to the congressional sub-committee investigating un-American activities.

Lee is in Europe, but testimony which he gave the committee at a private hearing was read into the record before a packed audience. It was corroborated on the witness stand by Burnham arter, one of his partners.

Reports from Lee's office, supposedly on American reactions to German government policy, were transmitted to the "Interessen Gemeinschaft" or dye trust in Berlin. However, the reports included suggestions as to German policy on rearmament and other matters, the testimony showed.

Small Industries Are Put Under Basic Code

Washington, July 13 (AP).—
Hugh S. Johnson promulgated a new "basic code" for industries still without the NRA fold Wednesday and set a thirty-day deadline for winding up blue eagle code making.

In a special order, Johnson gave all uncoded industries the choice of merging with existing kindred codes or operating under the new basic code with a general NRA code authority to be created by Johnson.

Johnson said "it is not intended by this plan to force all remaining uncoded industries under codes," but gave notice that industries remaining outside NRA which appear to be harboring labor abuses may have a code imposed.

NRA said the mopping-up plan would cover 262 pending codes and any industries which had not yet applied for codes. Code agreements appeared near on 135 of these and NRA urged their completion in the next fifteen days thereby eliminating them from the basic code group.

TOPS THE LIST

Stroh's Bohemian Beer tops the list for flavor—for quality—for purity—for digestibility. That is why Stroh's always has been so overwhelmingly popular. Reason: Stroh's is the only American Beer that is Fire Brewed as are the most celebrated European Beers.
